Carl McGowan has resigned his position as chef at the City hotel and goes to-morrow to Burlington, where he will be employed by the Champlain Transportation company.

Dresses and good looks seem trivial things, perhaps, but it was the desire to be good looking and to dress well, that led Marie Louise, in "The Thief," to throw discretion to the winds and steal large sums of money to make a pleasing appearance before her husband. Would you steal to dress well? "The Thief" answers the question and may be seen at the opera house Tuesday night, May 9.

"An Englishman's Honor"—(Selig).—Tells of an Englishman who, supposing he had money, drew liberally, but when gambling debts overwhelmed him, and the truth came out, he departed for America, made a fortune in the mines, and returned to England in time to prevent his sweetheart marrying an unscrupulous rival. The story is clearly told, the characters perform their parts well, and the photography is clear. It is a pleasant narrative with strong dramatic interest. It's at the Dreamland.

The regular weekly meeting of the Socialist club was held in the Scamplin block yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a large attendance. The afternoon was devoted largely to the reading and discussion of papers. James Massie contributed a well prepared piece on "Industrial Unionism." The second paper to be read was "Success of the Socialist Propaganda," which came in for considerable comment. The class recently organized to study Esperanto, the new international language, will hold its first meeting to-morrow evening, under the direction of John Stanyan, a well-known authority on the language.
